

Thomas Philipps of Leawood Concludes Internship for Moran

LEAWOOD - Congressman Jerry Moran today announced that Thomas Philipps of Leawood has concluded a congressional internship in his Washington, D.C., office. Philipps is a 2004 graduate of Saint Thomas Aquinas High School in Overland Park.

"Internships in my Washington, D.C., office provide students with a firsthand look at our government," Moran said. "Thomas was able to work on projects that benefit the people of our state. I appreciate his efforts."

Philipps is a student at Georgetown University in Washington, D.C., where he is studying history, English and philosophy. He previously attended the University of Dayton in Dayton, Ohio. Philipps will graduate from Georgetown in May 2008.

"I can't thank Congressman Moran and his staff enough for the opportunity to intern on Capitol Hill," Philipps said. "I have enjoyed witnessing and participating in the inner workings of a Congressional office. It has been an experience I will never forget."

In the office, Philipps assisted Congressman Moran with legislative and administrative duties on behalf of the people of Kansas.

Thomas is the son of Gary and Carole Philipps of Leawood.
